INTRO - Each of the following sentences are "short short films". These "short short" films will work better with each having their own separate title which reflects the point or subject matter the "short short" film is addressing whether it be "Captain Kangaroo and the Concept of Time", "Time Makes The Rules" or "Are You Cuckoo For Watching The Clock?". Titles at the end can also be added to drive home the point the specific short film is making. Music, etc., can be used to enhance the effect, if necessary. Almost all these short films have yet to be titled. Some of the short films are done, others will be done in anywhere from 1-15 years. Some have set endings, others have endings yet to be made up. With the endless words and sentences that have been said over the years, and the words and sentences yet to be said, the possibilities for creating any type of sentence desired is infinite. Below are examples of some of the sentences that have been made and others that can be made in the future. The amount of sentences that can be made in the future is infinite, hence the title, "TEN THOUSAND SIXTY SECOND FILMS".
